sophomore capstone by spring, but since I received my letters informing me of how many credits I have left until I graduate, I'm a little worried. I think it should be fine, but I've received mixed signals from various professors, and I'm not sure what to think. Also, I got my acceptance letter from U of Minnesota yesterday, but I'm kind of holding off on a decision on where to attend until my grade point average is above a 3.0 before I make any firm plans. Does anyone have experience with U of Minnesota? I didn't go to the good schools in my area

Owning a business that can be both online and offline can be good or bad based on the business opportunities that are available. However, there are a number of resources available in the internet that can provide valuable information on how to start your own online business. What follows is a brief list of the resources available to help you create a thriving online business. Starting your own online business can be an exciting venture that allows you to do what you love from home. Your personal lifestyle choices might not be enough to keep your online business running, but making adjustments in your life to accommodate an online business can help you make the necessary changes and positive changes that will keep your online business growing. Starting a profitable business is only the first step in achieving success as you need to know how to manage your online business once it is up and running. From the basics to handling recurring revenue and the effects that your sales have on your internet business, the following resources can offer valuable advice to those who want to start an online business. The internet is a goldmine of information on all kinds of topics and careers. You might not even realize that you are knowledgeable about certain topics and you do not have to be a pro to build a new online business. The following resources will give you advice on how to start your own online business. Because online business ideas can be tailored to suit your own needs and the needs of your family and friends, the best way to create your own online business is to use a custom business logo. These logos will tell your customers who you are, what your business is about and how you handle customer service. There are many ways to brand your new online business, and having a way to advertise to your clients and potential clients will be important to get your business off the ground. Some items that you might want to consider include start-up pages, social media posts, advertising on Google AdWords and other internet marketing programs that can help get the word out about your new online business. Once your business is up and running, it will take a lot of effort to keep it running. In order to keep it running smoothly
