The question is in the title, basically I have a trained, saved model in keras, this works great. The problem is the model needs to be frequently saved and load between sessions. The keras documentation is a bit lacking and I can't find a similar problem in the same module. A: As far as I know, there's no direct way to save the weights of a trained model. But, you can save the layers in the model and save the weights of the layers separately. The code below just saves the last 7 layers of the conv1_1 layer and loads them after restarting keras. from keras.models import load_model model_weight_path = './model.h5' layer_weights = list(model_weight_path.split('.')[1:-1]) model.layers[list(model.layers.keys())[7:]] = layer_weights model.save('model2.h5') model2 = load_model('model2.h5') The field of this invention pertains to fluid filtering systems which utilize gas injection thereinto, filtration of the gas prior to gas recovery, and recycle of the filtered gas back to the injection position. There is a need for filtering of gases, such as air used in an operating room or the like, prior to recovery, as well as a need for filtration and subsequent recycling of the filtered gas back to the injection position. Such devices are disclosed and claimed in U.S. Pat. Nos. 4,610,675; 4,648,696; 4,734,336; and 5,108,650. A problem in the past has been the fact that the process of gas filtration and recovery of filtered gas may interfere with the effectiveness of the filtering 6d1f23a050
